

Luca Babini

Luca Babini was born in Genoa/Italy and has been living in New York since 1988.

Luca completed Dance Choreography School in Paris, studying under Choreographer Francois Guilbard in the late seventies. He then went onto split his time between Genoa where he taught Visual Arts at the Fine Art Academy Gomma Gutta and Paris where he was dancing and choreographing.

In 1985 an Italian Fashion designer stumbled upon some ballet pictures taken by Luca of his own choreographs and offered him to shoot her advertising campaign.

It was the beginning of Luca's career as an international fashion photographer. In his first year shooting for Vogue Italia, L'Uomo Vogue, Mademoiselle, Glamour, Esquire, Men's Journal, Casa Vogue, Vanity Fair to name a few. With many accolades to his name Luca is now considered a world renowned photographer,

During his career Luca has shot, produced and directed many documentaries, films and television episodes. Luca has held numerous solo exhibitions whilst also being a part of many collaborative projects, contributing to books and archives continuously.

Luca has committed his time energy and enthusiasm to many charitable works including UNICEF Italy, whilst also documenting the threat of waste in the oceans with a series of photos titled Ocean Red.

Luca joins the Plastiki crew in the Line Islands for the second leg of the expedition after documenting the design, development, build and sea trial since the projects conception.
